Some Rules of Court Etiquette.
Ever since the day Princess Eulalie arrived in this country public interest has been attracted toward the question as to the proper etiquette to be observed. Etiquette nowhere enjoys greater consideration than at the imperial courts of Europe. It serves to maintain the proper distance between the anointed of the Lord and the friends, acquaintances and followers who are of less illustrious birth and station. Thus some time ago the little boy King of Spain, who is just seven years old, while running down the steps of the Royal Palace at Madrid, tripped and shot head-foremost down stairs. Fortunately, one of the footmen, standing on the steps, had the presence of mind to step forward and catch the little fellow in his arms, saving His Majesty from breaking his neck, at any rate from severe injury. Queen Christina is devoted to her son, and her feelings of gratitude towards the footman must therefore be imagined. Not even she, although as regent she holds the reins of power in Spain, could save the man from dismissal for having transgressed the laws of etiquette in taking the King in his arms. Not being a grande, he should have refrained from touching the sacred person of His Majesty. Although the Queen was not able to prevent his discharge she found means of rewarding him by appointing him gamekeeper on one of the royal estates and by presenting him with a considerable sum of money. Etiquette plays likewise a great role at the court of Great Britain, and Queen Victoria is extremely punctilious in her observance of its laws. During her visit to King Louis Philippe of France during the lifetime of her husband she, one evening, intimating to him her wish for a glass of water. The King rang the bell, and when a servant appeared ordered him to bring a glass of water. When the man reappeared with a goblet of water on a gold silver and presented to the Queen, to the astonishment of King Louis Philippe she declined it. The man was leaving the room with the water untouched when the Duc d'Aumale took the silver from the servant and presented it to the Queen. Her Majesty immediately accepted the goblet and drank the water. Only then did King Louis Philippe realize that his royal guest deemed herself debauched by etiquette from taking the goblet from the hands of an ordinary servant.

Visiting sovereigns are received at the railroad depot or wharf by the rulers of the country, while minor members of royal and imperial families are greeted at the railroad station by persons of equivalent rank. When imperial or royal personages visit one another etiquette orders even the number of kisses to be exchanged between the host and visitor on the arrival and departure of the latter. Thus, if one sovereign visits another, they embrace thrice, these kisses being based on the fiction that all sovereigns are brothers. When gigantic King Oscar, of Sweden, visited the Pope some years ago at Rome, he knelt down and kissed his hands round the rail form of the venerable Pontiff administered three loud, smacking kisses on the withered cheeks of His Holiness. Queen Victoria has been forced to order her country's sovereigns who have visited her. Semio-pendent rules, such as the Grand Dukes of Baden, Mecklenburg, &c., have only two embraces from full-fledged monarchs, while heirs to thrones, such as the Prince of Wales, the Crown Prince of Russia and the Prince of Monaco, are embraced three times. If, however, merely one of the blood, such as the younger brothers of the Prince of Wales, the Russian Grand Dukes and Princes remain content with an ordinary handshake. Each royal lady is entitled by European etiquette to have her hand kissed by the men whenever she extends it.

Over 200 well organized branches place the Southern Mutual Building and Loan Association in a position to maintain a fixed rate of premium and absolutely control the supply and demand of funds.

A Horrible Railroad Accident
Is a daily chronicle in our papers; also the death of some dear friend, who has died with Consumption, whereas, if he or she had taken CURE FOR THROAT AND LUNG DISEASE, in time, life would have been rendered happier and perhaps saved. Heed the warning! If you have a cough or any affection of the Throat and Lungs call at E. S. Leadbeater & Sons, sole agents, and get a trial bottle free. Large size 50c.

I SUFFERED from acute inflammation in my nose and head for a week at a time I could not see. I used Ely's Cream Balm and in a few days I was cured. It is wonderful how quick it helped me. Mrs. George S. Judson, Hartford, Conn.

FOR THREE WEEKS I was suffering from a severe cold in my head, accompanied by a pain in the temples. Ely's Cream Balm was recommended to me. After only six applications the Balm every trace of my cold was removed. -Henry C. Clark, New York, Appraiser's Office.

Four years' record demonstrates beyond all question that the Southern Mutual Building and Loan Association, of Atlanta, is the best money maker.
